My name is Valerij, and I'd like to give a talk about visitors in national museums and galleries in England.

I have some data about it.

Draw on information about visiting British Museum on one hand, we can say that visitors are rising. That's the reason of saying that people are interested in it, because this place is one of landmarks of England.

In conclusion, I should say that we should appeal this problem to relevant authorities to improve quality of cultural places like these. people won't get good level of cultural contentment, and future generations will get more and more worse situation. That is why it is important to improve quality of these landmarks, not to earn money from every visitor of something like that in this business. That's all I wanted to say about visits to national museums and galleries in England
